

Currently I purchase only basic cable service because I do not want to pay a highly inflated price for access to channels I would never watch. However, there are a select few channels that I would very much like to have access to, and I would most definitely consider paying a separate price for each of those. Packaging of cable services is simply a way for the cable companies to overcharge their customers who can no longer rely on simple airwaves to receive even local network stations.